STANFORD IS DEAD.

United States Senator and King of Palo Alto.

Found Lifeless in Bed After a Day

its yesterday. He took a drive around his stock farm and seemed as well as ever. He retired shortly after 10 o'clock and about midnight his valet, going into his bedroom, discovered that h that Senator Stanford's demise was question of but a short time. His symp toms were apoplectic, and his weight was increasing alarmingly. There was a stiffness about his limbs that made comotion an exceedingly difficult task for his limbs to support. He could take only the slightest exercise.

Six months ago the Senator sent for Dr. Curtis, of San Francisco. The doc tor prescribed heroic treatment, but the Senator was not ready to underg drastic methods for the reduction of fiesh and the restoration of his waning strength. His apoplectic symptoms increased, and his situation became suc as to create serious alarm.

About six weeks ago it was found necessary to impose a severely plain diet Senator, and since that time his sole food has consisted of fried hashed meat, with hot water as the only liquid accompaniment.

The Senator rigidly adhered to the severe requirements of the physician, and it seemed for a time that the results were most beneficial, and might possibly effect a permanent cure.

Mr. Stanford expressed himself as much encouraged, and looked forward hopefully to the time when he could devote himself with renewed energy to public affairs and to the completion of certain educational and other benevolent enterprises that were very near to his heart.

Leland Stanford was born in Albany County, this State, on March 9, 1824. He received an academical education, and entered the law office of Whoaton, Doolitie & Hadley, at Albany, in 1846. In 1849 he was admitted to the practice of law in the Supreme Court of the State of New York.

He removed to Port Washington, in the northern part of Wisconsin, where he practised law for four years. In the Spring of 1852 a fire destroyed his law library and other property, and he went to California.

There he became associated in business with his three brothers, who had gone to the Pacific Coast some time before. He was first in business at Michigan Bluffs, and in 1856 removed to Sacramento, to ensage in mercantile pursuits on a large scale.

Beale.

He was a delegate to the National Republican Convention at Chicago in 1860, was elected Governor of California and served from December, 1861, to December, 1883.

1860, was elected Governor of California and served from December, 1861, to December, 1863.

As President of the Central Pacific Railroad Company he superintended its construction over the mountains, building 520 miles of it in 293 days. He was interested in other railroads on the Pacific slope, in agriculture and in manufactures. He was first elected to the United States Senaje as a Republican to succeed J. T. Farley, Democrat, and took his seat on March 4, 1885.

Aside from his political career, Mr. Stanford was famed for his splendid breeding farm at Palo Alto, whence came such fine horses as Bell Boy, Hindu Rose, the world famous Sunol and others which made their mark on track and road. At one time there were about 500 horses on the Palo Alto farm. Electioneer's home was there, Mr. Stanford having purchased that noble stallion in 1877, with twelve other horses, all Hambletonians, for $43,000. Other well known Palo Alto horses were Piedmont and Norlane.

The Palo Alto farm is about thirty seven miles south of San Francisco. It is fullyided into a trotting stock farm and a running horse stock farm. About 180 men were employed there, forming, with the families of such as were married, a small village. The children of the employees attended a kindergarten school founded by Mrs. Stanford.

Mr. Stanford lost a son, Leland Stanford, Mr. Stanford lost a so plans and to his duties as United States Senator.

Mr. Stanford was a large man physically and mentally and a determined one, as well. It was said of him that he as "born to rule." And rule he did, as far as his enormous fortune would allow him to do so in this democratic country. Pleasant biographers are fond of relating, as he used to tell himself, that he made his first money selling horse-radish.

A POLICEMAN TO THE RESCUE.

Henry's Timely Arrival Puts Brutal Dog-Catchers to Flight.

Two little black-and-tan dogs were in Hundred and Thirty-first street and box Madison avenue, yesterday afternoor when two dog-catchers went into the area and attempted to seize them.

The lady of the house and her maid managed to get one of the dogs into the house, but while the maid was carrying in the other one of the dog-catchers grabbed it by the hind legs and endeavored to pull it from her.

The maid had the dog's head, and the man brutally wrenched the little dog in his efforts to get it away. A young man who lives in the house came to the girl's assistance, and was seized by the other dog-catcher.

In the struggle which ensued the dog-catchers acted in the most brutal manner, and but for the timely arrival of Policeman William J. Henry, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct, even the women would have been badly beaten. Nobody wanted to make a complaint, so the dog-catchers were not arrested.

Policeman Henry received warm thanks for his gentlemanly assistance.
